Each team is responsible for preparing and presenting a 10 to 15-minute presentation for the last week of class. Teams with general topics can choose any subtopics within their topic to speak about, for instance under lifespan a team could present psychosocial stages of development across the lifespan, and cognitive developmental theories or they could take an approach in presenting the stages of the life and major developmental themes. Those that are assigned an Applied Psychology Topics are required to present at least three different schools of thought that explain the behavior(s) involved; for instance, road rage might seek to explain the behavior from behavioral, psychoanalytic, and social learning theory viewpoints.

Each team will also be required to provide an 8-10 page paper, not including title page and references in page count, there is no abstract required for this paper. The paper must be done in APA format, size 12 Times New Roman font, double-spaced with no excess or extra spacing between paragraphs or other places. There should be no first person voice or opinion presented in the paper portion or presentation. The paper should be presented in the same order as the presentation, and each teammate must contribute to the final product. The paper will be turned in on Canvas by the due date assigned.

Scholarly sources are preferred, and each paper must have at least three scholarly articles from PsycArticles database in the TCC Library (see reference librarians for assistance with this). Other sources may come from texts and reliable websites; there is to be no Wikipedia, about.com, or other blog sites used in the presentation or paper. Use of Wikipedia, About.com, or other blogs will result in automatically failing the project.

All teams must meet the following criteria:

1. The presentation must be at least 10 minutes long and no longer than 15 minutes.
2. A visual aid is required such as PowerPoint, Prezi, etc.
3. Do not use any handouts.
4. Do not use film or video in your presentation without prior approval.
5. Each team member must present.
6. Everyone on the team must contribute to the final product.

Grading for the final project is as follows:

1. 150 points from the professor are possible
2. 50 points from peers are possible
3. 100 points for the final paper (see rubric in Canvas)
4. If you fail to turn in your “Team Evaluation” form to grade your peers you will receive 0 of 50 peer points, you are responsible for printing and bringing this to class as none will be provided.
5. Any team member that misses the presentation will receive zero points on the assignment without exception.
6. Any team member that walks in late or leave early during another team presenting will cause their team to be docked points.
